

'The big picture'

(Updated Friday, December 10, 2004, 8:23 AM)

Does the city of Fresno actually want us to believe that somehow the 9,000 residents of Bakman Water District are hurting the other 450,000 city residents because of lack of groundwater recharge [story Nov. 14]?

Do you think maybe the mismanagement at City Hall and the lack of water meters just might be playing more of a role with the water table?

How about a regional water plan? How about more recharge basins?

Leave Tim Bakman alone and the director of public utilities should heed his own words and look at the big picture.
