

'Don't fix it'

(Updated Sunday, March 6, 2005, 6:23 AM)

On March 1 there was an article about the city trying to mess up a good thing by taking over our Bakman Water District.

I say, "If it ain't broke don't fix it."

One man said he would welcome the city takeover because it would be cheaper. I wonder if he has ever tasted city water. It is like comparing a prime filet mignon to a round steak. They are both steaks, but one is far better than the other, as is Bakman water compared to city water.

I, too, own apartments in the Bakman District, and would even pay more if need be to be assured that my tenants have the best.

None of us has to buy bottled water and, unless the city takes over, we never will.

I say to the city, butt out and leave us alone.
